Kempton

Kempton

200 households. Kempton is a small town and the local center of power. Kempton Abbey was founded around 700 AD by two Benedictine monks from the Abbey of Saint Gall, Magnus von Füssen and Theodor. In 1213, Holy Roman Emperor Frederick II declared the abbots members of the Reichstag and granted the abbot the right to bear the title of Duke.

Sonthofen

Sonthofen

150 households. Closest town with a license to hold market.

Burguine Fluhenstein

Small castle (fortified manor) of the local Krüger family

Oberstdorf

Oberstdorf

75 households. Surrounded by the Allgäu alps, Oberstdorf is located at 800 meters above sea level. Surrounding the valleys are a number of peaks raising to as much as 2500 meters. Oberstdorf is the main village in area, and home to a small church. Four other small villages lie nearby (see below).

The river Breitach originates in this area, and flows into the Iller and later into the Danube, which finally reaches the Black Sea, several thousand kilometers to the east. The river is a good place to fish for trout, grayling and pike.
